

Wyoming Board of Medicine

On Dec. 10, 1875, Wyoming Territory officials approved “An Act to Prevent the Practice of Medicine, Surgery and [or] Obstetrics by Unqualified Persons.” In 1890, Wyoming became the 44th U.S. state and the first where women had the right to vote. On Dec. 1, 1899, the state legislature formally created the Board of Medical Examiners.

Currently the Wyoming Board of Medicine consists of eight members: five physicians, two public members and one physician assistant. The board licenses medical doctors, osteopathic physicians and physician assistants to practice medicine in Wyoming. Serving with board members is the Physician Assistant Advisory Council.
